American Reply To Khrushchev Given Russians

French, British Also Deliver Notes On Berlin Situation

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States today handed to the Russians President Kennedy's reply to Premier Khrushchev's memorandum on the German problem and Berlin.

Immediately afterward, The French delivered a note on the same question, and the British did likewise.

None of the Western Big Three embassies would disclose contents of the communications.

The U.S. embassy declined even to say communications had been delivered but the French and British confirmed they had been.

The notes are not identical. The American one is a straight reply to the memorandum which Khrushchev gave the President in Vienna early in June.

The French and British notes set forth their own views on Germany.

It is understood all three remain firm on maintenance of their war-won rights in West Berlin.

The Khrushchev memorandum, handed to President Kennedy at Vienna June 4, declared the Soviet Union would sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany before the end of the year if there was no agreement on signing up with both Germans.

A Soviet-East German treaty would jeopardize rights of the United States, Britain and France in West Berlin and access to that city via land and air corridors across 110 miles of East German territory.

Western statesmen have made clear they intend to maintain their positions in Berlin, where the Big Three Western powers have taken garrisons totaling 11,000 men.

In the meantime, Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., said today Republicans will support any "firm, tough position" President Kennedy takes on the defense of West Berlin.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said members of his party are against "any further weakening of the American position in any part of the world."

He expressed confidence that Kennedy will make it clear to Soviet Premier Khrushchev this week that there will be no West- (Continued on Page 10)

DiSalle Refuses To Sign Bill Hiking Taxes on Trailers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A legislative act increasing local taxes on house trailers will become law without the signature of Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

He called the act a violation of the no-new-taxes pledge of majority Republicans in the legislature and added it "is especially inconsistent with their position that taxes in Ohio are too high and should be reduced."

Under present law, house trailers are taxed at the local level at a flat $18 a year. The new law sets up a taxing formula which figures out to a tax base of 32 per cent of a trailer's purchase price with a 10 per cent depreciation allowance each year.

That means the tax on a $5,000 house trailer the first year would be $48 a year in a locality where the real estate-tax rate is $30 per $1,000 annually. The minimum tax would be $18 per trailer.

Gagarin Is Speechless After Star Coos to Him

MOSCOW (AP)—Gina Lollobrigida and spaceman Yuri Gagarin met today in the office of culture minister Ekaterina Furtseva as part of the Moscow Film Festival. Said Gagarin: "My associates are jealous of me being in the presence of a real star today. I have been up among the stars in the sky but they were unattainable."

To which Gina replied with a grin: "Well, I'm attainable."

Monumental Finance Battle Still Faces Assembly Chiefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 104th Ohio General Assembly has finished its work, but its work is far from ended.

This inconsistency is caused by the fact that the legislature's Republican leaders still face a monumental battle in the field of financing state operations.

By whatever means the financial snarl is untangled, two things are certain:

1. Somehow the money will be provided to run the state government for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1962, and ending June 30, 1962, and

2. Almost nobody will be happy about the whole thing.

Unlike military action where opposing generals can maneuver to join the conflict at the place and time of their own choosing, every one knows exactly when and where the battle of the Ohio budget will be resumed: 10:30 a. m. EST, Monday, July 31 in the chamber of the Ohio House of Representatives.

The battle may last a week or it might rage on until July 1, 1962.

As many as 194 skirmishes may be involved in the first part of the big fight shaping up in the House.

If the Republicans win them all, there will be an equal number in the state Senate. Again, if the Republicans win all the Senate fights the battle will be over.

If the Republicans lose any major number of the skirmishes in either House, the battle will resume sometime early next year.

The whole battle, of course, is over the veto by Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle of the entire second half of the two year state budget adopted by the GOP Legislature. DiSalle says it is adequate for the state's needs.

All told, he vetoed 194 items in the $2 billion budget bill. Speaker Roger Cloud says he is certain that each item veto must be considered separately by both the House and Senate.

The House has an electrical voting system which shows the vote of each member on a pair of huge scoreboards which light up like a pinball machine in addition to producing a permanent record indicating the vote by means of perforations on a rollcall form.

But 194 rollcalls is a different matter in the 38-member Senate.

Assistant Clerk Ellsworth (Jack) Lett would be well-advised to come prepared for the Senate end of the battle with several bottles of gargle compound and a big box of sharp pencils. He will be required to call the names of senators 7,372 times and record the votes of each.

But aside from the mechanics involved in dealing with such a mass of vetoes, there also is the matter of debate.

If each of the vetoed items produced only 10 minutes' discussion, it would take 32 hours—four full working days—for each House to act on the entire batch.

Cloud says he believes that because, under his theory, each item veto is separate, the House could end overridden veto items to the Senate in batches of 10 or 20 and the Senate could be working on the item vetos at the same time the House is considering others.

The whole plan of action rests on whether the Republicans can find any Democratic support. The GOP needs the votes of at least two Democrats in the House and three in the Senate to override a veto by the required three-fifths vote.

Cloud says he hasn't had time yet to explore the possibility of Democratic help. Yet, he adds, he feels the Republican legislative leadership could be accused of a lack of sincerity in its fiscal policy unless it makes the attempt to override the governor.

Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem says the Senate will try to override if the House does. If the GOP fails to knock down the governor's massive veto, it has two choices.

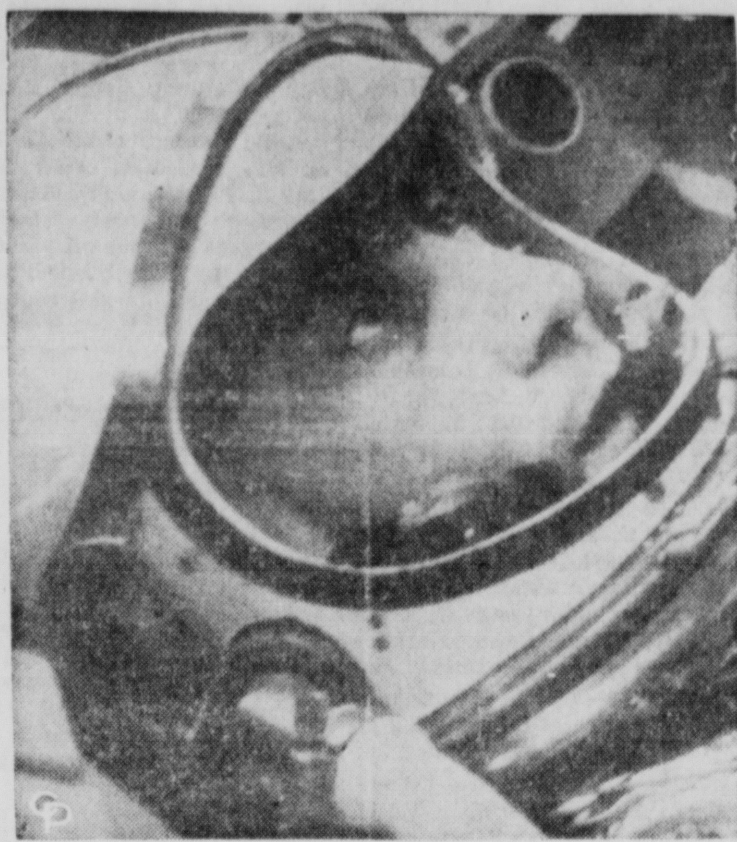

It can recess until early next year, by that device retaining the authority to consider any issue it wishes, or

It can take final adjournment, relying upon the governor to call a special session on strictly money matters. The only difficulty, from the Republican point of view with the latter approach is that, under the Constitution, the legislature in a special session called by the governor may consider only those issues the governor specifies in his call.

Goldwater Says Rocky Is Darn Nice — But

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., says he hasn't anything personal against Nelson A. Rockefeller, but he wouldn't want to team up with the New York governor on a GOP national ticket in 1964.

"A darn nice fellow," was the way Goldwater described Rockefeller here this weekend. "But," the senator added: "What would a party be doing with Rockefeller in Chicago advocating federal aid to education and me in Los Angeles talking against it?"

TABBED FOR 2ND SPACE FLIGHT — U.S. scientists have picked USAF Capt. Virgil I. Grissom (above) to make the nation's second manned rocket flight into space, Tuesday. Reliable sources have indicated that Grissom, 35, will ride a capsule named Liberty Bell 7, 115 miles up and 300 miles over the Atlantic Ocean from Cape Canaveral. It is reported that Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. will serve as Grissom's "backup" man for the flight.

Second Astronaut Expects To Be 'Scared' at Blastoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — "I'm not the hero type," says the George Gobel-like little fellow who was named today as the pilot of America's second manned space capsule, scheduled for launching Tuesday.

And from appearances you'd say Virgil Ivan (Gus) Grissom, 35, was right in his self-appraisal.

With his crew-cut brown hair and 5-foot 7, 150-pound frame, Gus Grissom just doesn't have the lean-and-hungry, flashing-eyed look America has come to expect of its air heroes.

He is the only astronaut ever to admit: "I know I'm going to be scared when I get in there." But he added, "I'm not worried about being scared. I won't be scared long. I know it's going to work."

"But I can also remember worrying a bit as a boy before I took my first swim in a stone quarry back home in Indiana, and in Korea I certainly wondered what it was going to be like the first time an enemy pilot in a MIG started shooting at me," he said.

Despite his modest words, Grissom, an Air Force captain, has a record of heroism.

A crack test pilot, he has 3,400 hours of flying time—2,560 of them in jets. He flew 100 missions as an F86 fighter pilot in Korea and wound up with the Distinguished Flying Cross and an Air Medal with a cluster.

There was a time when Grissom and his wife, Betty, were almost certain he wouldn't even be picked for the final team of seven Mercury astronauts.

He has his fever and one of the examining doctors told Grissom he had planned to recommend rejection.

Grissom argued the allergy couldn't bother him in a space capsule—it's air conditioned and besides there's no ragweed in space — and won.

Aside from the allergy, Grissom is in top-notch physical condition.

To prepare his muscular body for the tasks of space flight he has allowed himself to be jolted, jerked, spun, shaken, crushed, chilled and roasted.

To prepare his genius-level mind (IQ somewhere between 135 and 147) he boned up on physics, electronics, astronomy, navigation, aerodynamics and propulsion.

Grissom, born April 3, 1926, in Mitchell, Ind., still calls Indiana home. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis D. Grissom, live in Mitchell, where Gus attended primary and high schools.

In 1944 he entered the Air Force as an aviation cadet but never got as far as flight training. Married to a hometown sweetheart in 1945, he decided a year later to study mechanical engineering at Purdue University.

After graduation in 1950, Grissom failed to find the right job and re-entered the Air Force. He won his wings in 1951.

He and Betty live in simple fashion, devoting much of their time to their sons, Scott, 11, and Mark, 7. Hunting and fishing are Grissom's favorite hobbies. He is a member of the United Church of Christ.

Pakistan Asks U.S. To Lend Moral Backing

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Ayub Khan says Pakistan wants the backing of the United States in spiritual and moral courage plus the practical aid of dollars invested.

He made this plea at a barbecue on Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's ranch near here Sunday on the eve of his departure for home. Ayub is in the United States for policy talks with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The Pakistan president told a crowd of 400 Texans — including many top-bracket industrialists and businessmen—that his country is hemmed in geographically by great powers and is depending upon the United States to help it preserve its freedom.

"We have a margin of 15 to 20 years to make good," Ayub said. "If we do, we have a chance of survival. The task is enormous and we ask our friends to help us develop our strength."

He also said that Pakistan "expects a lot of you in spiritual and moral courage more than anything else. You have a large heart but you must have a still larger heart. We are your friends. We have had our differences and I came here to help iron some of them out. Please don't do anything that would make the actions of your friends more difficult."

As long as the United States follows this course, he said, "our friendship will grow."

Ohio Traffic Kills 13

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's weekend traffic accidents took a total of 13 lives. In addition, four persons died in miscellaneous mishaps.

Grissom Gets Nod for Space Shot Tuesday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, slender, terse-talking veteran of Korea, was picked today as the astronaut for the United States' second man-in-space effort Tuesday.

If all goes as planned, the $820-a-month test pilot known as "Gus," will be shot like a bullet 300 miles southeast over the Atlantic Ocean around 6 a.m. EST.

On the projected flight the 35-year-old native of Mitchell, Ind., will reach a maximum altitude of 116 miles.

For all practical purposes, Grissom's suborbital flight will be identical to the rocket ride taken by Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. on May 5.

If, for any reason, the 155-pound Grissom is unable to make the flight, his place in the space capsule called "Liberty Bell 7" will be taken by Marine LT. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, of New Concord, Ohio.

However, there is speculation here that Glenn is in a special spotlight.

One theory is that the red-headed Ohio Marine has the inside track for the "big ride" — the orbital flight three times around the earth sometime next year.

The selection of the 5-foot-7 inch Grissom to become the third human to cross the threshold of space was announced at a news conference by Air Force Lt. Col. John A. Powers, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Even as the selection of the tanned, fit-looking fatha of two sons was being announced the long and tedious countdown preliminary to launch was under way in the air conditioned block—house about 150 feet from the missile launching pad.

There was no immediate word from Grissom, who is not noted for his volubility anyhow, as to how he felt on learning of his selection.

In his most recent published interview, however, Grissom, a 1950 graduate of Purdue University, was asked why he had volunteered to become an astronaut.

He replied: "My career has been in service to my country. And here is another opportunity to serve."

Grissom, who flew 100 combat missions as a fighter pilot in Korea and holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, is married to the former Betty Moore c Mitchell. They have two children Scott, 11, and Mark, 7.

The announcement of Grissom's selection was made before an audience of more than 200 newspaper, radio and television reporters of the non Communist world.

In the course of the news conference, Powers said the weather and all elements of the countdown "now look A-O-K."

Both Grissom and Glenn received their preflight physical examinations Sunday afternoon after spending most of the day just doing nothing, save for a little surf casting on the beach of this missile center.

Powers also announced these assignments for the astronauts other than Grissom.

Shepard will be at the vital capsule communicator post in the control center and will keep in constant radio voice contact with Grissom during the flight. Scott Carpenter will back him up.

Glenn will be backup pilot for Grissom, as he was for Shepard. Donald Slayton will be at the capsule communicator post in the blockhouse and will maintain voice contact with Grissom when he is in the capsule before the launch. Backing up Slayton will be Walter Schirra.

Gordon Cooper will observe the launching while flying high over the Cape in an F106 jet.

The flight will be mankind's third trip into space in preparation for true space travel.

The first man to reach the threshold of the heavens was Soviet Maj. Yuri A. Gagarin, who orbited the earth for 108 minutes at a maximum altitude of 187 miles on April 12.

Gagarin was followed into space by U.S. Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., on May 5. Shepard's suborbital trip and the one scheduled Tuesday will be almost identical.

At the time of launch some 75 scientists and technicians will be packed into the control block-house about 50 yards from the 78,000-pound-thrust Redstone missile with its two-ton space capsule.

None will have a more exacting job than Dr. Kurt Debus, director, Launch Operations Directorate, Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

Despite the tons of electronic equipment to detect anything wrong, there will be eight seconds during which Debus, German-born rocket expert, will simply look at the flames billowing from the Redstone's engines and make up his mind whether all is going well.

If Debus detects any signs of thrust decay he will push a button which will send the man-carrying capsule 2,000 feet into the air and then parachute him to safety.

The flight of the Liberty Bell 7, like that of Shepard in the capsule called "Freedom 7," is designed to gather information on equipment and pilot behavior as a prelude to a U.S. effort to send a man on an orbital flight around the globe.

If all goes as planned, the capsule and man will be plucked from the sea by helicopters from the aircraft carrier, USS Randolph.

Viet Nam Rips Communist Unit

200 Reds Are Slain In Weekend Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Government troops driving into a rebel stronghold southwest of Saigon killed an estimated 200 Viet Cong Communists over the weekend in one of the bloodiest battles of the seven-year guerrilla war.

Military authorities said 187 Viet Cong dead were counted after the three-hour pitched battle in the swampy Plaine des Jones —Plaine de Reeds—about 60 miles from the capital.

They added, however, that several hundred Reds fled toward the nearby Cambodian border carrying numbers of dead and wounded.

Government losses were given as 12 dead and about 60 wounded. President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces are giving a new twist to the hit-and-run war, seeking out the rebels in offensive mop-up operations in territories where the Communists are strong.

Government sources claimed a major victory in Sunday's battle that sent a big rebel band fleeing toward the Cambodian border, carrying some of their dead and wounded with them.

About 600 Viet Cong regulars, armed with French and American weapons seized earlier from government forces, were lured into a trap when they tried to encircle an army company.

Afr fierce fighting, the outnumbered rebels succeeded in breaking away and retreated over the marshes. Ten Viet Cong were taken prisoner and 68 heavy and light weapons seized.

It was the second major offensive operation launched by the government in an attempt to wipe out terrorist strongholds.

Fire Destroys Trailer North of Ashville

TRAILER BLAZE — Members of the Ashville-Harrison Fire Department move hastily to douse a blaze in a house trailer early Sunday at the Miller Court, Route 1, Lockbourne. Sheriff's deputies said the interior of the Miller owned trailer was destroyed. The fireman at the left is spraying some of the furniture which was tossed outside.

A house trailer at the Miller Court, Route 1, Lockbourne, was destroyed by fire at 12:55 a. m. Sunday.

Ashville - Harrison Fire Chief George Cummins said damage was estimated at $2,000 to the trailer and $1,000 to contents. He said the cause was not determined.

The trailer was the property of Miller, the court owners. It was occupied by a Mr. Sergeant who was not at home at the time.

Cummins said the trailer was almost demolished by the time his department arrived.

Special Sheriff's Deputies Max Spangler and Charles Tomlinson investigated.

TABBED FOR 2ND SPACE FLIGHT — U.S. scientists have picked USAF Capt. Virgil I. Grissom (above) to make the nation's second manned rocket flight into space, Tuesday. Reliable sources have indicated that Grissom, 35, will ride a capsule named Liberty Bell 7, 115 miles up and 300 miles over the Atlantic Ocean from Cape Canaveral. It is reported that Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. will serve as Grissom's "backup" man for the flight.

Second Astronaut Expects To Be 'Scared' at Blastoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — "I'm not the hero type," says the George Gobel-like little fellow who was named today as the pilot of America's second manned space capsule, scheduled for launching Tuesday.

And from appearances you'd say Virgil Ivan (Gus) Grissom, 35, was right in his self-appraisal.

With his crew-cut brown hair and 5-foot 7, 150-pound frame, Gus Grissom just doesn't have the lean-and-hungry, flashing-eyed look America has come to expect of its air heroes.

He is the only astronaut ever to admit: "I know I'm going to be scared when I get in there."

But he added, "I'm not worried about being scared. I won't be scared long. I know it's going to work."

"But I can also remember worrying a bit as a boy before I took my first swim in a stone quarry back home in Indiana, and in Korea I certainly wondered what it was going to be like the first time an enemy pilot in a MIG started shooting at me," he said.

Despite his modest words, Grissom, an Air Force captain, has a record of heroism.

A crack test pilot, he has 3,400 hours of flying time—2,500 of them in jets. He flew 100 missions as an F86 fighter pilot in Korea and wound up with the Distinguished Flying Cross and an Air Medal with a cluster.

There was a time when Grissom and his wife, Betty, were almost certain he wouldn't even be picked for the final team of seven Mercury astronauts.

He has had fever and one of the examining doctors told Grissom he had planned to recommend rejection.

Grissom argued the allergy couldn't bother him in a space capsule—it's air conditioned and besides there's no ragweed in space — and won.

Aside from the allergy, Grissom is in top-notch physical condition.

To prepare his muscular body for the tasks of space flight he has allowed himself to be jolted, jerked, spun, shaken, crushed, chilled and roasted.

To prepare his genius-level mind (IQ somewhere between 135 and 147) he boned up on physics, electronics, astronomy, navigation, aerodynamics and propulsion.

Grissom, born April 3, 1926, in Mitchell, Ind., still calls Indiana home. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis D. Grissom, live in Mitchell, where Gus attended primary and high schools.

In 1944 he entered the Air Force as an aviation cadet but never got as far as flight training. Married to a hometown sweetheart in 1945, he decided a year later to study mechanical engineering at Purdue University.

After graduation in 1950, Grissom failed to find the right job and re-entered the Air Force. He won his wings in 1951.

He and Betty live in simple fashion, devoting much of their time to their sons, Scott, 11, and Mark, 7. Hunting and fishing are Grissom's favorite hobbies. He is a member of the United Church of Christ.

The announcement of Grissom's selection was made before an audience of more than 200 newspaper, radio and television reporters of the non Communist world.

In the course of the news conference, Powers said the weather and all elements of the countdown "now look A-O-K."

Both Grissom and Glenn received their preflight physical examinations Sunday afternoon after spending most of the day just doing nothing, save for a little surf casting on the beach of this missile center.

Powers also announced these assignments for the astronauts other than Grissom.

Shepard will be at the vital capsule communicator post in the control center and will keep in constant radio voice contact with Grissom during the flight. Scott Carpenter will back him up.

Glenn will be backup pilot for Grissom, as he was for Shepard. Donald Slayton will be at the capsule communicator post in the blockhouse and will maintain voice contact with Grissom when he is in the capsule before the launch. Backing up Slayton will be Walter Schirra.

Gordon Cooper will observe the launching while flying high over the Cape in an F106 jet.

The flight will be mankind's third trip into space in preparation for true space travel.

The first man to reach the threshold of the heavens was Soviet Maj. Yuri A. Gagarin, who orbited the earth for 108 minutes at a maximum altitude of 187 miles on April 12.

Gagarin was followed into space by U.S. Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., on May 5. Shepard's suborbital trip and the one scheduled Tuesday will be almost identical.

At the time of launch some 75 scientists and technicians will be packed into the control block-

Grissom Gets Nod for Space Shot Tuesday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, slender, terse-talking veteran of Korea, was picked today as the astronaut for the United States' second man-in-space effort Tuesday.

If all goes as planned, the $820-a-month test pilot known as "Gus," will be shot like a bullet 300 miles southeast over the Atlantic Ocean around 6 a.m. EST.

On the projected flight the 35-year-old native of Mitchell, Ind., will reach a maximum altitude of 116 miles.

For all practical purposes, Grissom's suborbital flight will be identical to the rocket ride taken by Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. on May 5.

If, for any reason, the 155-pound Grissom is unable to make the flight, his place in the space capsule called "Liberty Bell 7" will be taken by Marine LT. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, of New Concord, Ohio.

However, there is speculation here that Glenn is in a special spotlight.

One theory is that the red-headed Ohio Marine has the inside track for the "big ride" — the orbital flight three times around the earth sometime next year.

The selection of the 5-foot-7 inch Grissom to become the third human to cross the threshold of space was announced at a news conference by Air Force Lt. Col. John A. Powers, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Even as the selection of the tanned, fit-looking father of two sons was being announced the long and tedious countdown preliminary to launch was under way in the air conditioned block-house about 150 feet from the missile launching pad.

There was no immediate word from Grissom, who is not noted for his volubility anyhow, as to how he felt on learning of his selection.

In his most recent published interview, however, Grissom, a 1950 graduate of Purdue University, was asked why he had volunteered to become an astronaut.

He replied: "My career has been in service to my country. And here is another opportunity to serve."

Grissom, who flew 100 combat missions as a fighter pilot in Korea and holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, is married to the former Betty Moore of Mitchell. They have two children Scott, 11, and Mark, 7.

The announcement of Grissom's selection was made before an audience of more than 200 newspaper, radio and television reporters of the non Communist world.

In the course of the news conference, Powers said the weather and all elements of the countdown "now look A-O-K."

At the time of launch some 75 scientists and technicians will be packed into the control block-

house about 50 yards from the 78,000-pound-thrust Redstone missile with its two-ton space capsule.

None will have a more exacting job than Dr. Kurt Debus, director, Launch Operations Directorate, Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

Despite the tons of electronic equipment to detect anything wrong, there will be eight seconds during which Debus, German-born rocket expert, will simply look at the flames billowing from the Redstone's engines and make up his mind whether all is going well.

If Debus detects any signs of thrust decay he will push a button which will send the man-carrying capsule 2,000 feet into the air and then parachute him to safety.

The flight of the Liberty Bell 7, like that of Shepard in the capsule called "Freedom 7," is designed to gather information on equipment and pilot behavior as a prelude to a U.S. effort to send a man on an orbital flight around the globe.

If all goes as planned, the capsule and man will be plucked from the sea by helicopters from the aircraft carrier, USS Randolph.

Government troops driving into a rebel stronghold southwest of Saigon killed an estimated 200 Viet Cong Communists over the weekend in one of the bloodiest battles of the seven-year guerrilla war.

Military authorities said 187 Viet Cong dead were counted after the three-hour pitched battle in the swampy Plaine des Jattes — Plain of Reeds—about 60 miles from the capital.

They added, however, that several hundred Reds fled toward the nearby Cambodian border carrying numbers of dead and wounded.

Government losses were given as 12 dead and about 60 wounded.

President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces are giving a new twist to the hit-and-run war, seeking off the rebels in offensive mop-up operations in territories where the Communists are strong.

Government sources claimed a major victory in Sunday's battle that sent a big rebel band fleeing toward the Cambodian border, carrying some of their dead and wounded with them.

About 600 Viet Cong regulars, armed with French and American weapons seized earlier from government forces, were lured into a trap when they tried to encircle an army company.

After fierce fighting, the outnumbered rebels succeeded in breaking away and retreated over the marshes. Ten Viet Cong were taken prisoner and 68 heavy and light weapons seized.

It was the second major offensive operation launched by the government in an attempt to wipe out terrorist strongholds.

Green-Eyed German Is Miss Universe

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Willow Marlene Schmidt, a green-eyed beauty with a big, disarming smile, bade farewell to many of her erstwhile competitors today and got busy on her new job—being Miss Universe of 1961.

The 24-year-old German, selected by a panel of international experts as "the most beautiful girl in the world," reigned supreme at Sunday night's coronation ball.

It was the final official event of the tenth annual beauty contest.

The tall, silver-blonde from Stuttgart met today with officials of the four-day contest to complete plans for personal appearances and promotion during the coming 12 months.

"I'm very happy it's over," Marlene said in reference to the Saturday night judging, "but I still can't believe it. It seems like everything happens too quickly."

Less than one month ago, she took leave from a $54-a-week job as a research engineer for an electronics and radio firm in Stuttgart. She plans to return to that job when her reign ends.

"This is like fairyland to me," the 5-foot-8 Marlene said in reference to her three-room executive suite in Miami Beach hotel. She will remain here two to three weeks, return to Germany to visit relatives, then come back to the United States to fulfill commitments of the pageant winner.

Daytonian Copies Bible With Pencil

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Not too many people get around to reading the Bible all the way through, but a 75-year-old Dayton grandmother has gone them one better. She copied it.

"I had to write pretty fast, too. There's a lot in the Bible, you know," says Mrs. Charles Ennis. She took up the project six years ago and finished last Thanksgiving, 31 paper tablets later.

"I just enjoyed learning about the Bible," she explains. "I wrote whenever I could. Some days I just couldn't get at it, and some days I'd keep at it almost all night."

Writing in pencil so she could erase her mistakes, Mrs. Ennis copied all of the Old and New Testaments on the 31 tablets, using both sides of the paper.

"I had to copy some of it more than once," she says. "It seemed the leaves kept coming out of the tablets."

She adds that her right shoulder still hurts because of all the writing she did.

Both Mrs. Ennis and her husband are members of Northridge Church of the Nazarene and ardent Bible readers. Her husband, also 75, insists he won't take a back seat to anyone in the matter of Bible reading.

"It's the best story I ever read," he asserts.

The couple, residents of Dayton for more than 50 years, have practiced what they've read. Their hobby has been caring for sick people who need assistance.

Jail Escapee Is Nabbed on Church Roof

MOUNT VERNON (AP)—Accused murderer Carroll Wears, captured on a church roof after his escape from the Knox County Jail, faces arraignment here today.

Wears, 23, has been charged with fatally shooting his estranged wife's ex-husband, Sam Cline, 24, Wednesday night.

Sunday, Wears escaped from the jail by knocking out turnkey Roy Weeks, 59, with a piece of concrete. The jailer was hospitalized with a possible fractured skull.

After a three-hour manhunt, Wears was spotted on the roof of the First Baptist Church here by custodian Roscoe Davis who called the sheriff's office.

After his capture, Wears was transferred to the Licking County Jail at Newark "because feeling is running high against him here," Sheriff Paul Cochran said.

He was to be returned here today for arraignment.

Last Wednesday, the two men had driven to the home here where Mrs. Wears, ex-wife of Cline, was living. Police said that when Cline walked into the yard, Wears yelled he was going to kill him and started shooting with a .32 caliber pistol.

After shooting Cline, police said, Wears opened fire at the house but no one inside was hurt.

Police were called and Wears surrendered meekly.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the most amazing revelations from ex-Communists is that they did not think their way into the party. They felt their way in. They got out for the same reason. It was not intellect. It was emotion.

Many were intellectuals who devoted years of their lives to a cause they neither understood nor analyzed. One historic example, Whittaker Chambers, died a week ago.

Yet another intellectual, Bertrand Russell, as early as 1920 in his book, "The Practice and Theory of Bolshevism," was able to understand communism so clearly only three years after the Bolshevik Revolution that he could predict its direction.

Why was he able to see straight and others not?

He could think coldly, even where he himself was concerned for he also advocated socialism; he had historical perspective; he had a good enough mind not to have illusions about mankind no matter what banner it waved; and he was personally adjusted to his times and his environment.

Russell emphasized that under the kind of communism practiced in the Soviet Union all power was in the hands of an elite made the "sacrifice of the individual inevitable."

For many years afterward this central inevitability of communism—the insignificance of the individual—was ignored or unperceived by hosts of intellectuals who jumped into the party and squirmed out.

For many of them, eventually, Communist disregard for the individual became the point at which they felt their disillusionment began. Chambers said Stalin's purges of the old Bolsheviks in the middle 1930s was a major turning point for him. Actually, it had begun long before, deep within him.

Chambers became famous when he disclosed he had been a Communist courier in an espionage ring which involved the State Department and one of its important officials, Alger Hiss.

Later he wrote a book, "Witness," about his life. It's a tortured document. He sought to indicate his break with the party was the result of cerebration. But it was too emotional for that, just as his joining the party was.

He wrote that he winced "at the failure" of people to understand that a "man does not, as a rule, become a Communist because he is attracted to communism but because he is driven by despair by the crises of history through which the world is passing."

Arthur Koestler, another Communist, thought pretty much the same. In "The God That Failed," a collection of testimonials by ex-Communists published in 1949, Koestler said "a faith is not acquired by reasoning."

He said persuasion may play a part in inducing a man to join the party but that the real reasons lie deeper, perhaps beyond an individual's understanding. He pointed to his own impoverished background as a cause.

The same would explain a Communist's departure from the party in many cases, as it did in that of Chambers. He traced the beginnings of his own break to one night when he looked at his daughter's ear and suddenly thought it must have been made by God. For years he had had no belief in God. Unanswered is: When did his belief begin, and why and how?

He said, "Man without mysticism is a monster." Yet, until that moment of looking at an ear he had considered himself materialistic only. But the Stalin purges became the tangible moment at which he said he knew he had to break.

Yet Chambers was almost a classic type for candidacy in the party although he didn't understand that either.

In 1932, Morris Ernst, after talking to 300 ex-Communists on why they had joined and left the party, wrote in his book, "Report on the American Communists": that among the 300 there was an extremely "high incidence of suicide, desertions and divorces among the parents, brothers and sisters."

Chambers' early life was miserable because of the split between his parents, the suicide of his brother and the insanity of his grandmother.

How Weather Looks Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the most amazing revelations from ex-Communists is that they did not think their way into the party. They felt their way in. They got out for the same reason. It was not intellect. It was emotion.

Many were intellectuals who devoted years of their lives to a cause they neither understood nor analyzed. One historic example, Whittaker Chambers, died a week ago.

Yet another intellectual, Bertrand Russell, as early as 1920 in his book, "The Practice and Theory of Bolshevism," was able to understand communism so clearly only three years after the Bolshevik Revolution that he could predict its direction.

Why was he able to see straight and others not?

He could think coldly, even where he himself was concerned for he also advocated socialism; he had historical perspective; he had a good enough mind not to have illusions about mankind no matter what banner it waved; and he was personally adjusted to his times and his environment.

Russell emphasized that under the kind of communism practiced in the Soviet Union all power in the hands of an elite made

Jail Escapee Is Nabbed on Church Roof

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — Accused murdered Carroll Wears, captured on a church roof after his escape from the Knox County Jail, faces arraignment here today.

Wears, 23, has been charged with fatally shooting his estranged wife's ex-husband, Sam Cline, 24, Wednesday night.

Sunday, Wears escaped from the jail by knocking out turnkey Roy Weeks, 59, with a piece of concrete. The jailer was hospitalized with a possible fractured skull.

After a three-hour manhunt, Wears was spotted on the roof of the First Baptist Church here by custodian Rosco Davis who called the sheriff's office.

After his capture, Wears was transferred to the Licking County Jail at Newark "because feeling is running high against him here," Sheriff Paul Cochran said.

He was to be returned here today for arraignment.

Last Wednesday, the two men had driven to the home here where Mrs. Wears, ex-wife of Cline, was living. Police said that when Cline walked into the yard, Wears yelled he was going to kill him and started shooting with a .32 caliber pistol.

After shooting Cline, police said, Wears opened fire at the house but no one inside was hurt.

Police were called and Wears surrendered meekly.

Kiwanis To View Film on Fishing

The program for today's regular Kiwanis Club will include some first hand information on fishing.

Following dinner at 6:30 p. m. and a business session, the Kiwanians will see a film, "Fishing Fever," rated to be worthy of any angler's attention.

A report on the Kiwanis sponsored Key Club Convention held last week in Philadelphia also is on the agenda. Ronald Easter represented the local club at the Pennsylvania session.

despair by the crises of history through which the world is passing."

Arthur Koestler, another Communist, thought pretty much the same. In "The God That Failed," a collection of testaments by ex-Communists published in 1949, Koestler said "a faith is not acquired by reasoning."

He said persuasion may play a part in inducing a man to join the party but that the real reasons lie deeper, perhaps beyond an individual's understanding. He pointed to his own impoverished background as a cause.

The same would explain a Communist's departure from the party in many cases, as it did in that of Chambers. He traced the beginnings of his own break to one night when he looked at his daughter's ear and suddenly thought it must have been made by God. For years he had had no belief in God. Unanswered is: When did his belief begin, and why and how?

He said, "Man without mysticism is a monster." Yet, until that moment of looking at an ear he had considered himself materialistic only. But the Stalin purges became the tangible moment at which he said he knew he had to break.

Yet Chambers was almost a classic type for candidacy in the party although he didn't understand that either.

In 1952, Morris Ernst, after talking to 300 ex-Communists on why they had joined and left the party, wrote in his book, "Report on the American Communists," that among the 300 there was an extremely "high incidence of suicide, desertions and divorces among the parents, brothers and sisters."

Chambers' early life was miserable because of the split between his parents, the suicide of his brother and the insanity of his grandmother.

Ban May Be Too Broad

The Justice Department in Washington is striving to have a number of new laws enacted to help it to cope with organized crime. One particular proposal merits close scrutiny.

It is that embodied in a bill "to prohibit travel in aid of racketeering enterprises," which would provide heavy fines and imprisonment for anyone convicted of traveling in interstate commerce for the purpose of unlawful activity.

Purpose of the measure is to restrict interstate gambling operations. But the chances are good that the major criminals would evade this proscription with ease, leaving only ordinary citizens' traveling rights restricted.

This could involve unwary persons who might happen to break some law but were hardly criminals in the usual sense of that word in federal offenses.

Freedom of travel—which makes America unusual among nations — should not be endangered for everybody because gamblers also travel. If laws are broken, the remedy is to tighten up policing at local and state levels, not to pass a law potentially involving every citizen.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Did you know most people are inclined to drink milk more often when alone than at any other time?

Prosperity note: During their lifetime the babies born in America in 1960 will buy half a billion pairs of shoes, 25 billion pounds of beef, 91 billion gallons of gas, 11 million new cars, 63 million suits and dresses, a million new homes—and heaven only knows how many aspirin tablets!

The English long jeered at the U.S. passion for modern plumbing. But a recent survey showed the average British executive now takes a bath every day, and two if he is going out for the evening.

Does your dog have halitosis? If you're his best friend, tell him there is now on the market a special dentifrice for pooches to make their breath sweeter and their teeth brighter.

Science has learned how to make food from wood and, in effect, you can eat a tree. An edible cellulose made from wood fibers, filling but nonfattening, has been recognized by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as fit for human consumption.

It was Henry David Thoreau who observed, "Man is rich in proportion to the number of things which he can afford to let alone."

A Question of Morals

By George Sokolsky

Whether one busy Soviet goods or sells to a Soviet country is not as much a question of law as of morals.

It is possible to say that as long as the government admits Soviet goods into this country, it is not the function of the private citizen to go beyond the government's decision. Such a view would be tenable in a country where the citizen has no right of choice.

In the United States, from the Declaration of Independence until today, the right of choice is basic. A citizen may look at such items as Hong Kong handkerchiefs or Polish hams or Russian caviar and say, "No, thank you. I'll do without."

However, many businessmen have hitherto held that they are not concerned with such controversial matters. Their view has been that a contract is a contract and money is money no matter where it comes from. Two West Coast manufacturers have brought the issue to a head. They have, to quote "Wood and Wood Products":

"... flatly refused to aid and abet the Russians in building 'the largest and most highly automated sawmill in the world.'"

That is their choice, too, I, for instance, like the ballet but will not go to the Russian ballet. I am not sufficiently fanatical on the subject as to say that no dime of mine will aid and abet Soviet Russia's economy. So I am a black fanatic! See me!

Again quoting "Wood and Wood Products":

"Reviewing the situation briefly, Republic Electric & Development Co. and Puget Sound Fabricators, Inc., both of Seattle, were invited to collaborate in supplying six complete lumber sorting systems with memory controls for installation in a 1,500,000 bd. ft. per day mill to be built in Canada, then disassembled for shipment and erection in Russia."

"In declining the invitation, M. E. Hillman, president of Republic, cited the Russian purchasing committee's admission that they could not train enough technical people in the next 20 years to build such a mill and were therefore purchasing American know-how to close the gap to two years. 'We will have no part in handing this advantage to our sworn enemy.'"

"Gordon B. Anderson, president of the associated company, commented that 'we must be willing to be counted as thinking of our own country's welfare before the dollar.'"

Thankfully, we can praise these two fanatics who will yet see the day when their judgement will have proved to be right. They will surely survive without this Russian business, but they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have not done their country any harm. Let somebody else get the contract and let him sleep with it when American boys get killed!

So the publishers of "Wood and Wood Products" got all excited and checked their own subscription lists. They found that 118 copies of their magazine went to six Iron Curtain countries. They found that 61 subscriptions went to Soviet Russia. Whatever it is worth, they are willing to forego this business. Wrote Jack Koellisch:

"Therefore, we can no longer consciously make it so easy for practical information to be picked up from our pages and used to make an important enemy more formidable. So, henceforth as those 118 Iron Curtain country subscriptions come due we shall cancel them and shall refuse new subscriptions offers from Russia and her satellites."

O. K. That is how this American's conscience works and to this conservative, it seems a very wholesome and reasonable attitude to take. The British complained bitterly for decades that the Japanese were beating them in the textile market, but all the time, they were selling Japan high-grade textile machinery.

If they made a profit selling the machines, they had no complaint when the Japanese used the machines. That is why the machines were bought. Similarly when the United States sold Japan scrap iron when it was dead certain that sooner or later we would be at war with Japan, or to put it more charitably, that we might soon be at war with Japan, those who made a profit had no right to complain if their sons were killed in that war.

As a matter of fact, anything can happen in a war and those who mix profits with emotions are bound to have troubles. There is a justice in such matters which sometimes is very unpleasant.

Jessel Settles Suit, 'Thanks' Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedian George Jessel, 63, who said he thanked her for the compliment, has settled a paternity suit brought by actress Joan Tyler and hopes to be married — but not to Miss Tyler.

Miss Tyler, who has said she expects her child in December, disclosed a week ago that she planned to drop her suit against Jessel. At the same time, she said she and the comedian probably would marry.

A HARD-WORKING SUBURBANITE was dozing peacefully in his hammock one Saturday A.M. when his wife thrust a shovel into his hand, pointed to the rose bushes and said, "Here. You know what to do with this." Later she found him gone — and this note tied to the shovel handle: "Have worms: will fish."

There is one prominent playwright in New York who wishes now he had not published a violent and merciless tirade against the critics last winter. "If only I had remembered in time," he laments, "a line I heard years ago in a vaudeville theater. Somebody asked the comic if he had enjoyed his soup at dinner that evening. 'Brother,' answered the comic earnestly, 'I should never have stirred it!'"

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Those bats in your church belfry may be killers!

They sometimes carry rabies — hydrophobia. So do other animals like skunks, hogs, rats and foxes.

Still healthy-looking, they wander into town looking for food, their saliva spilling over with rabies viruses.

One bite can inject millions of these viruses into you or your dog. Now Fido can spread his infected saliva around the neighborhood before he shows signs of sickness.

You won't feel sick for a month or so unless you've had a giant dose in a ragged bite around your head or neck. Hydrophobia germs usually rest up before attacking the brain.

After a month or so, the old bite begins to tingle and burn. You find your bedclothes, while tears pour at every little thing. Sweat soaks get restlessly and fly off the handle down your face and saliva drools from your mouth.

Swallowing tightens your throat in painful spasm. Just looking at food or drink makes you choke and gag — "hydrophobia" means "fear of water."

Eventually, nerve cells wear out and a fatal paralysis sets in — all within five days of that first tingling trouble.

Rabies can't be cured. But 20 daily injections — before the trouble starts — can prevent it. Before giving shots which may have unwanted side effects, the doctor would like to be certain that you were bitten by a mad animal.

Don't go mad and kill the animal! Bring him back alive. It may be too early for laboratory tests to tell whether or no he has hydrophobia.

A rabies-infected animal will die in a week or so and hen laboratory tests can guide your doctor. Unless you were bitten on the neck you have plenty of time.

Prevent rabies! Stay away from wild, sluggish or excited drooling animals. Even healthy-looking specimens may be killers. Protect your dog or cat with annual rabies shots.

And why not get rid of those bats in your barn or belfry!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

If you are flavor-wise, you'll add a teaspoon of sugar and a half-teaspoon of vanilla to a milk shake made with mashed ripe banana. Refreshing and nutritious!

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—American steel companies continue to open up new sources of foreign iron ore, even as they wait in the slow days of July for the expected pickup in production in August or September.

At the same time, ore production dwindles in the once dominant American iron mines.

U.S. Steel has just shipped its first trial cargo of Quebec ore for the Fairless Works near Philadelphia. It is testing out its harbor loading machinery at Port Carter, Quebec, designed to handle 6,000 tons an hour. The ore comes 200 miles from the north by a train on a specially built line.

If the tests prove out, the harbor on the St. Lawrence will be completed to handle the largest ore carriers now afloat. It will be 50 feet deep, 2,500 feet long and 450 feet wide. Ore will be stockpiled there in the summer for loading when the rail line may be snowbound.

Ore also is coming in from Labrador mines developed in recent years as the rich ores of the Lake Superior district began to run out. The Canadian ore helps feed the hungry steel mills of the Midwest as well as those along the West Coast.

In the last three years the greatest volume of foreign ore has come from Venezuela where a mountain of almost solid iron ore is being mined. Much of this ore goes to East Coast steel mills, but some is sent to the mills around Birmingham, Ala.

The American Iron & Steel Institute reports the United States imported 38,774,625 net tons in 1960. This compared with 1.3 million tons in 1945.

In 1960 Venezuela sent 16.3 million tons here, Canada 11.8 million tons, Chile 4.4 million, Peru 3 million, Brazil 1.6 million, Liberia 1 million, along with smaller amounts from Mexico, British West Africa and Sweden.

Liberia is stepping up iron ore production fast, with an eye on the growing Western European market as well as the U.S. one. In the fabled American iron country at the head of the Great Lakes, the story is different. High grade ores there are petering out.

In 1948 shipments from the Mesabi Iron Range were 69 million tons. In 1959 shipments were cut to 36 million tons, partly because of a strike. In 1960 the figure rose to 55 million tons, largely because the steel mills were working at capacity the first part of the year in anticipation of a strike.

Shipments now include 11 million tons or more of taconite, processed at considerable cost from low grade ore.

Ray Nlan, state lands and minerals director for Minnesota, explains that "because the blast furnace operators are demanding a much higher grade of iron ore, it is necessary now for us to concentrate iron ore which we used to ship as mined."

Among other American steel companies investing in and developing iron ore sources in Canada are Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, National, Armco, Wheeling, Inland Steel and Hanna Ore Mining Co.

The St. Lawrence Seaway has made Midwest American markets more accessible to Canadian ore.

But while imports have been on the rise, American iron companies haven't been idle. Upgrading their ores by processes called Beneficiation, present day concentrate are higher in iron content than the regular ore shipped for years from the rich Mesabi range.

Steelmen say these blue ribbon concentrates allow five blast furnaces to produce now as much as six and a half used to turn out. Thus, even if they hadn't built a single new blast furnace, steelmakers could have increased their annual capacity by more than 25 million tons a year through Beneficiation.

And, taking the risks of foreign turmoil into account, the Lake Superior district doubtless will remain the most important single source of iron ore for the American steel industry.

Whether one busy Soviet goods or sells to a Soviet country is not as much a question of law as of morals.

It is possible to say that as long as the government admits Soviet goods into this country, it is not the function of the private citizen to go beyond the government's decision. Such a view would be tenable in a country where the citizen has no right of choice.

In the United States, from the Declaration of Independence until today, the right of choice is basic. A citizen may look at such items as Hong Kong handkerchiefs or Polish hams or Russian caviar and say, "No, thank you. I'll do without."

However, many businessmen have hitherto held that they are not concerned with such controversial matters. Their view has been that a contract is a contract and money is money no matter where it comes from. Two West Coast manufacturers have brought the issue to a head. They have, to quote "Wood and Wood Products": "... flatly refused to aid and abet the Russians in building 'the largest and most highly automated sawmill in the world.'"

That is their choice, too. I, for instance, like the ballet but will not go to the Russian ballet. I am sufficiently fanatical on the subject as to say that no dime of mine will aid and abet Soviet Russia's economy. So I am a black fanatic! Sue me!

Again quoting "Wood and Wood Products":

"Reviewing the situation briefly, Republic Electric & Development Co. and Puget Sound Fabricators, Inc., both of Seattle, were invited to collaborate in supplying six complete lumber sorting systems with memory controls for installation in a 1,500,000 bd. ft. per day mill to be built in Canada, then disassembled for shipment and erection in Russia.

"In declining the invitation, M. E. Hillman, president of republic, cited the Russian purchasing committee's admission that they could not train enough technical people in the next 20 years to build such a mill and were therefore purchasing American know-how to close the gap to two years. 'We will have no part in handing this advantage to our sworn enemy,'

"Gordon B. Anderson, president of the associated company, commented that 'we must be willing to be counted as thinking of our own country's welfare before the dollar.'"

Thankfully, we can praise these two fanatics who will yet see the day when their judgement will have proved to be right. They will surely survive without this Russian business, but they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have not done their country any harm. Let somebody else get the contract and let him sleep with it when American boys get killed!

So the publishers of "Wood and Wood Products" got all excited and checked their own subscription lists. They found that 118 copies of their magazine went to six Iron Curtain countries. They found that 61 subscriptions went to Soviet Russia. Whatever it is worth, they are willing to forego this business. Wrote Jack Koellisch:

"Therefore, we can no longer consciously make it so easy for practical information to be picked up from our pages and used to make an important enemy more formidable. So, henceforth as those 118 Iron Curtain country subscriptions come due we shall cancel them and shall refuse new subscriptions offers from Russia and her satellites."

O. K. That is how this American's conscience works and to this conservative, it seems a very wholesome and reasonable attitude to take. The British complained bitterly for decades that the Japanese were beating them in the textile market, but all the time, they were selling Japan high-grade textile machinery.

If they made a profit selling the machines, they had no complaint when the Japanese used the machines. That is why the machines were bought. Similarly when the United States sold Japan scrap-iron when it was dead certain that sooner or later we would be at war with Japan, or to put it more charitably, that we might soon be at war with Japan, those who made a profit had no right to complain if their sons were killed in that war.

As a matter of fact, anything can happen in a war and those who mix profits with emotions are bound to have troubles. There is a justice in such matters which sometimes is very unpleasant.

A HARD-WORKING SUBURBANITE was dozing peacefully in his hammock one Saturday A.M. when his wife thrust a shovel into his hand, pointed to the rose bushes and said, "Here. You know what to do with this." Later she found him gone—and this note tied to the shovel handle: "Have worms: will fish."

There is one prominent playwright in New York who wishes now he had not published a violent and merciless tirade against the critics last winter. 'Brother,' answered the comic earnestly, 'I should never have stirred it!'"

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.
Those bats in your church belfry may be killers!

They sometimes carry rabies — hydrophobia. So do other animals like skunks, hogs, rats and foxes.

Still healthy-looking, they wander into town looking for food, their saliva spilling over with rabies viruses.

One bite can inject millions of these viruses into you or your dog. Now Fido can spread his infected saliva around the neighborhood before he shows signs of sickness.

You won't feel sick for a month or so unless you've had a giant dose in a ragged bite around your head or neck. Hydrophobia germs usually rest up before attacking the brain.

After a month or so, the old bite begins to tingle and burn. You find your bedclothes, while tears pour at every little thing. Sweat soaks get restlessly and fly off the handle down your face and saliva drools from your mouth.

Swallowing tightens your throat in painful spasm. Just looking at food or drink makes you choke and gag — "hydrophobia" means "fear of water."

Eventually, nerve cells wear out and a fatal paralysis sets in — all within five days of that first tingling trouble.

Rabies can't be cured. But 20 daily injections — before the trouble starts — can prevent it. Before giving shots which may have unwanted side effects, the doctor would like to be certain that you were bitten by a mad animal.

Don't go mad and kill the animal! Bring him back alive. It may be too early for laboratory tests to tell whether or no he has hydrophobia.

A rabies-infected animal will die in a week or so and hence laboratory tests can guide your doctor. Unless you were bitten on the neck you have plenty of time.

Prevent rabies! Stay away from wild, sluggish or excited drooling animals. Even healthy-looking specimens may be killers. Protect your dog or cat with annual rabies shots.

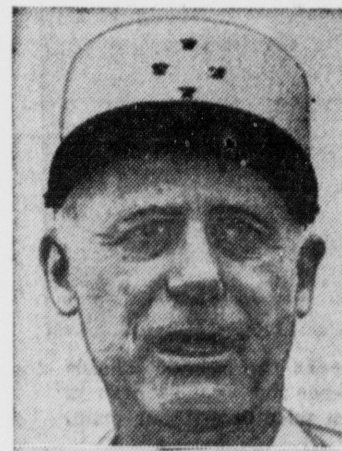

And why not get rid of those bats in your barn or belfry?

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

If you are flavor-wise, you'll add a teaspoon of sugar and a half-teaspoon of vanilla to a milk shake made with mashed ripe banana. Refreshing and nutritious!

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP)—American steel companies continue to open up new sources of foreign iron ore, even as they wait in the slow days of July for the expected pickup in production in August or September.

At the same time, ore production dwindles in the once dominant American iron mines.

U.S. Steel has just shipped its first trial cargo of Quebec ore for the Fairless Works near Philadelphia. It is testing out its harbor loading machinery at Port Cartier, Quebec, designed to handle 6,000 tons an hour. The ore comes 200 miles from the north by a train on a specially built line.

If the tests prove out, the harbor on the St. Lawrence will be completed to handle the largest ore carriers now afloat. It will be 50 feet deep, 2,500 feet long and 450 feet wide. Ore will be stockpiled there in the summer for loading when the rail line may be snowbound.

Ore also is coming in from Labrador mines developed in recent years as the rich ores of the Lake Superior district began to run out. The Canadian ore helps feed the hungry steel mills of the Midwest as well as those along the West Coast.

In the last three years the greatest volume of foreign ore has come from Venezuela where a mountain of almost solid iron ore is being mined. Much of this ore goes to East Coast steel mills, but some is sent to the mills around Birmingham, Ala.

The American Iron & Steel Institute reports the United States imported 38,774,625 net tons in 1960. This compared with 1.3 million tons in 1945.

In 1960 Venezuela sent 16.3 million tons here, Canada 11.8 million tons, Chile 4.4 million, Peru 3 million, Brazil 1.6 million, Liberia 1 million, along with smaller amounts from Mexico, British West Africa and Sweden.

Liberia is stepping up iron ore production fast, with an eye on the growing Western European market as well as the U.S. one.

In the fabled American iron country at the head of the Great Lakes, the story is different. High grade ores there are petering out. In 1948 shipments from the Mesabi Iron Range were 69 million tons. In 1959 shipments were cut to 36 million tons, partly because of a strike. In 1960 the figure rose to 55 million tons, largely because the steel mills were working at capacity the first part of the year in anticipation of a strike.

Shipments now include 11 million tons or more of taconite, processed at considerable cost from low grade ore.

Ray Nlan, state lands and minerals director for Minnesota, explains that "because the blast furnace operators are demanding a much higher grade of iron ore, it is necessary now for us to concentrate iron ore which we used to ship as mined."

Among other American steel companies investing in and developing iron ore sources in Canada are Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, National, Armco, Wheeling, Inland Steel and Hanna Ore Mining Co.

The St. Lawrence Seaway has made Midwest American markets more accessible to Canadian ore.

But while imports have been on the rise, American iron companies haven't been idle. Upgrading their ores by processes called Beneficiation, present day concentrate are higher in iron content than the regular ore shipped for years from the rich Mesabi range.

Steelmen say these blue ribbon concentrates allow five blast furnaces to produce now as much as six and a half used to turn out. Thus, even if they hadn't built a single new blast furnace, steelmakers could have increased their annual capacity by more than 25 million tons a year through Beneficiation.

And, taking the risks of foreign turmoil into account, the Lake Superior district doubtless will remain the most important single source of iron ore for the American steel industry.

Pollution Curb Measure OKd

$570 Million Bill Sent to President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate passage of a $570-million water pollution control bill containing new federal powers to try to assure the nation a pure water supply.

The measure, which was endorsed by Kennedy, would boost pollution control grants to the states from their present $50 million annual level of $100 million by 1964.

The federal share in any one project would be limited to $600,000 or 30 per cent of the total cost, whichever is smaller. The money may be used for sewage projects or other antipollution work.

The House cleared the compromise version of the legislation Thursday.

The Senate originally passed a $470-million measure, the House a $775-million bill. The conferees came up with an in-between figure.

Under the final version, the federal grants would be increased to $80 million in the current fiscal year which began the first of this month, to $90 million in the year starting July 1, 1963, and to $100 million in the four succeeding years.

The grants are to be distributed on the basis of a formula which gives added help to the lowest income states.

Also authorized is a $5-million allotment annually for five years to help do the research and planning on pollution control projects.

Women Doctors

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Women usually are accepted on a par with men in the medical profession, a group of women doctors agree.

"I've never felt anyone made it tough for me because I'm a woman," said Dr. Ruth A. Lawrence of Rochester, a pediatrician. "However, sometimes clinic patients will say, after I've examined them, 'Now, when is the doctor coming?'"

Dr. Lois J. Plummer of Buffalo said children accept the idea of a woman doctor better than adults "because they haven't any preconceived idea of a doctor being a man. And, too, they are used to their mothers."

A Rochester obstetrician, Dr. Mary Jane Bird, said most of her patients don't seem to care whether their doctor is a man or a woman. "In obstetrics, especially, you may find a few who prefer a woman doctor."

The biggest problem for a woman, says Dr. Ruth E. Wainer Schwartz of Rochester, is getting into medical school.

"The likelihood of a man sticking with it and being more productive in his career is better than a woman's. S. if a man and a woman of equal abilities applied, the tendency would be for them to choose the man—and I can't blame them."

The women gave their views at a meeting of the Women's Medical Society of New York State.

The highest temperature ever recorded in the Virgin Islands was 96 degrees, and the lowest 65 degrees.

Rising Tempo of Business Heard in Summer Slowdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Arising tempo of business is being heard in these days of seasonal summer slowdown.

Mostly, they came from the giant steel and auto industries, and in statistics out of Washington on gains in employment and production activity generally.

Encouraging word on sales and profits came from American Telephone & Telegraph Co., International Business Machines Corp., DuPont and other industry bellwethers.

Cross-currents in steel mirrored the over-all picture.

The traditional summertime slump tightened its grip, yet a gush of orders for future delivery greatly heartened steelmen—and presumably their myriad manufacturing customers who generate steam in a wide sector of the economy.

Figures for the holiday-shortened Fourth of July week reflected a 7.6 per cent cut in output from the preceding week to 1,779,000 tons, a six-week low.

But Iron Age, a trade publication, reported orders for August 20 to 25 per cent above comparable advance data for May and June, both fairly good months.

January-June production was up 16 per cent from the preceding six months, when steelmakers were in the doldrums.

A somewhat similar pattern held in autos.

Although production was tapering off as the industry neared the end of 1961 model runs heralding wholesale but temporary employee layoffs, the sales picture was bright.

Turnover by dealers in June, while down 9 per cent from a year ago, saw a robust 538,746 cars find buyers, slightly behind May.

General Motors said the month was the best of the 1961 model run, aided by a surge in the last 10 days. The uptrend continued into the first one-third of July for principal Ford Motor Co. products.

The automakers and the United Auto Workers' Union bargained to supplant wage contracts expiring soon.

The talks proceeded in a generally hopeful atmosphere, and steel ordering by automen suggested they were not expecting a strike.

In Washington, unofficial figures subject to later adjustment put the economy's gross national product for the April-June quarter at $512 billion, $7 billion above the prerecession high and up $12 billion from the first quarter. The GNP measures the nation's total output of goods and services.

Even better news emerged from the Labor Department.

As of mid-June, it said, non-farm payrolls were up 600,000 from May 15, including a 240,000 rise—twice the expected seasonal increase—in factor employment.

Moreover, the average work week lengthened to 40.1 hours, a gain of .4, and average blue collar wages in manufacturing rose to $94.24, up $1.34 from a month earlier and a new all-time high.

Still, with employment at 68,706,000, the ranks of job-seekers, reinforced by newly graduated high school and college students, stood at a troubling level of 5,580,000, including 900,000 persons out of work 27 weeks or longer.

Production of textiles continued a six-month climb, Florida processors reported a record-high pack of frozen orange concentrate—82.4 million gallons—and a leading rubber industry figure predicted 1961 would go down as the second best year in replacement tires sales.

Comparative gloom persisted in the $27-billion assets railroad industry, as vital freight traffic sagged—partly because of spreading vacations in the coal mines. Latest retail trade and department store sales data lacked any sparkle, although June activity was barely ahead of May.

In New York, the stock market put on a lackluster performance after a spurt the week before, and in Washington a congressional committee approved $750,000 to beef up an inquiry already under way into securities trading practices.

Sales on the stock exchange this week totaled 14,844,700 shares compared with 11,964,700 last week. Bond sales on the exchange totaled $31,712,000 (par value) this week against $26,799,000 the week before.

Briefly around the business scene—AT&T reported earnings of $326 million for the three months ended May 31, up from $311.9 million in the like 1960 quarter. The Business Advisory Council of the U.S. Department of Commerce severed governmental ties and reorganized as a private group in the wake of differences with Secretary Luther H. Hodges.

Semi-Annual Vendor Returns Due July 31

All Pickaway County persons having Ohio Vendor's licenses are required to file their next semi-annual returns by July 31, for the period Jan. 1, to June 30, 1961.

To assist vendors with these returns, the Department of Taxation has arranged to have an examiner stationed at the treasurer's office in the Pickaway County Courthouse on July 31.

Returns mailed to the Treasurer of State should be postmarked not later than July 31 in order to avoid a one dollar per day charge for delinquent filing.

Vendors seeking assistance from examiners will be required to present all records necessary to substantiate the figures to be reported, such as a copy of their return for the previous period, a record of gross and exempt sales and a record of taxable sales of 31 cents or over for the period Jan. 1, to June 30, 1961.

VENDORS will also be required to bring copies of their purchase orders showing the amounts of stamps purchased during the first half of 1961.

Vendors are no longer required to have sales tax returns sworn to before a notary public or a representative of the Department of Taxation. The vendor, however, is required to sign the declaration on the return that the information given is true.

When completed, all returns must be filed with or mailed to the Treasurer of State, P. O. Box 1799, Columbus. If a deficiency is shown on the vendor's return, remittance either by check, draft or money order, made payable to the Treasurer of State in the amount of tax due, should accompany the return.

For the year thus far, 149 boys and 131 girls have been born within the county. There have been 121 deaths.

Joey Bishop Not Counting On Calling Hollywood Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Word is that the Joey Bishop Show is the hot television entry for the fall season—but deadpan Joey isn't moving his family out here yet.

Said Bishop: "I'm renting a house in Beverly Hills for the summer but I still keep the one in Englewood, N.J. My boy, Larry, is out here for the summer, but I'll start him in school back home again in the fall."

"We're making 26 films with options for 13 more. If the series goes, I'll come out here for good—not before."

Joey, a night club comic, does not care if he ever plays a saloon again.

"I'd like some of this Hollywood home life for a change. I told Jack Entratter I might play the Sands for him in Las Vegas once in a while—but no more of the tour."

That is, of course, if the TV series hits. If not, Joey says he will gladly go back to the clubs. Currently, he is appearing with Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford in "Soldiers 3."

The five of them also work together as a night club act—the Summit Conference. Amazingly, it is Bishop who is the catalyst for the group of performing giants.

His jokes, delivered with that serious look, hold the act together.

6 More Legislators Get Travel Expenses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state emergency board has approved travel expenses totaling $2,549 for six more state legislators to attend the annual meeting of the council of state governments in Rapid City, S. D.

Previously, the board approved travel expenses totaling $4,160 for eight members of the House to attend the meeting.

It also has approved travel expenses for Finance Director James H. Maloon and Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard Swope to attend.

er. Once in Las Vegas when the then presidential candidate, John F. Kennedy, was in the audience, Bishop quipped:

"I know, senator, that if you get elected, Sinatra will ask to be ambassador to Italy and Sammy Davis ambassador to Israel. But me, I'm not asking for anything like that."

A pause—and then that serious delivery:

"I'd just appreciate it if you could fix it so I wouldn't get drafted again."

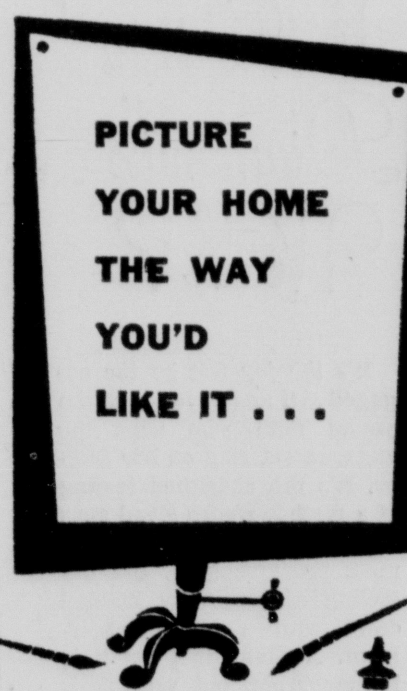

Kennedy roared.

Eligible for a parole hearing is William H. Davis convicted March 11, 1960, in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court on a morals accusation. He is serving a sentence of 3-20 years.

Joseph E. Robina was committed to the institution on October 26, 1960, for breaking and entering a dwelling in the night season. He was sentenced to the institution for one year.

The traditional summertime slump tightened its grip, yet a gush of orders for future delivery greatly heartened steelmen—and presumably their myriad manufacturing customers who generate steam in a wide sector of the economy.

Figures for the holiday-shortened Fourth of July week reflected a 7.6 per cent cut in output from the preceding week to 1,779,000 tons, a six-week low.

But Iron Age, a trade publication, reported orders for August 20 to 25 per cent above comparable advance data for May and June, both fairly good months.

January-June production was up 16 per cent from the preceding six months, when steelmakers were in the doldrums. A somewhat similar pattern held in autos.

Although production was tapering off as the industry neared the end of 1961 model runs heralding wholesale but temporary employee layoffs, the sales picture was bright.

Turnover by dealers in June, while down 9 per cent from a year ago, saw a robust 538,746 cars find buyers, slightly behind May.

General Motors said the month was the best of the 1961 model run, aided by a surge in the last 10 days. The uptrend continued into the first one-third of July for principal Ford Motor Co. products.

The automakers and the United Auto Workers' Union bargained

to supplant wage contracts expiring soon.

The talks proceeded in a generally hopeful atmosphere, and steel ordering by automen suggested they were not expecting a strike.

In Washington, unofficial figures subject to later adjustment put the economy's gross national product for the April-June quarter at $512 billion, $7 billion above the prerecession high and up $12 billion from the first quarter. The GNP measures the nation's total output of goods and services.

Even better news emerged from the Labor Department.

As of mid-June, it said, non-farm payrolls were up 600,000 from May 15, including a 240,000 rise—twice the expected seasonal increase—in factor employment.

Moreover, the average work week lengthened to 40.1 hours, a gain of .4, and average blue collar wages in manufacturing rose to $94.24, up $1.34 from a month earlier and a new all-time high.

Still, with employment at 68,706,000, the ranks of job-seekers, reinforced by newly graduated high school and college students, stood at a troubling level of 5,580,000, including 900,000 persons out of work 27 weeks or longer.

Production of textiles continued a six-month climb, Florida processors reported a record-high pack of frozen orange concentrate—82.4 million gallons—and a leading rubber industry figure predicted 1961 would go down as the second best year in replacement tires sales.

Comparative gloom persisted in the $27-billion assets railroad industry, as vital freight traffic sagged—partly because of spreading vacations in the coal mines.

Latest retail trade and department store sales data lacked any sparkle, although June activity was barely ahead of May.

In New York, the stock market put on a lackluster performance after a spurt the week before, and in Washington a congressional committee approved $750,000 to beef up an inquiry already under way into securities trading practices.

Sales on the stock exchange this week totaled 14,844,700 shares compared with 11,964,700 last week. Bond sales on the exchange totaled $31,712,000 (par value) this week against $26,799,000 the week before.

Briefly around the business scene—AT&T reported earnings of $326 million for the three months ended May 31, up from $311.9 million in the like 1960 quarter. The Business Advisory Council of the U.S. Department of Commerce severed governmental ties and reorganized as a private group in the wake of differences with Secretary Luther H. Hodges.

Semi-Annual Vendor Returns Due July 31

All Pickaway County persons having Ohio Vendor's licenses are required to file their next semi-annual returns by July 31, for the period Jan. 1, to June 30, 1961.

To assist vendors with these returns, the Department of Taxation has arranged to have an examiner stationed at the treasurer's office in the Pickaway County Courthouse on July 31.

Returns mailed to the Treasurer of State should be postmarked not later than July 31 in order to avoid a one dollar per day charge for delinquent filing.

Vendors seeking assistance from examiners will be required to present all records necessary to substantiate the figures to be reported, such as a copy of their return for the previous period, a record of gross and exempt sales and a record of taxable sales of 31 cents or over for the period Jan. 1, to June 30, 1961.

VENDORS will also be required to bring copies of their purchase orders showing the amounts of stamps purchased during the first half of 1961.

Vendors are no longer required to have sales tax returns sworn to before a notary public or a representative of the Department of Taxation. The vendor, however, is required to sign the declaration on the return that the information given is true.

When completed, all returns must be filed with or mailed to the Treasurer of State, P. O. Box 1799, Columbus. If a deficiency is shown on the vendor's return, remittance either by check, draft or money order, made payable to the Treasurer of State in the amount of tax due, should accompany the return.

Joey Bishop Not Counting On Calling Hollywood Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Word is that the Joey Bishop Show is the hot television entry for the fall season—but deadpan Joey isn't moving his family out here yet.

Said Bishop: "I'm renting a house in Beverly Hills for the summer but I still keep the one in Englewood, N.J. My boy, Larry, is out here for the summer, but I'll start him in school back home again in the fall."

"We're making 26 films with options for 13 more. If the series goes, I'll come out here for good—not before."

Joey, a night club comic, does not care if he ever plays a saloon again.

"I'd like some of this Hollywood home life for a change. I told Jack Entratter I might play the Sands for him in Las Vegas once in a while—but no more of the tour."

That is, of course, if the TV series hits. If not, Joey says he will gladly go back to the clubs. Currently, he is appearing with Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford in "Soldiers 3."

The five of them also work together as a night club act—the Summit Conference. Amazingly, it is Bishop who is the catalyst for the group of performing giants.

His jokes, delivered with that serious look, hold the act together.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Keep Home Fires Burning!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an electrician, and every day he comes home and tells me how another lady made a pass at him. He says they all have a different approach, but the idea is the same. My husband is happy at home so I have never lost any sleep because he goes into different homes every day and could run into some floozy who is looking for a cheap thrill. But what if some day my husband gets too weak to resist temptation? I keep asking myself how long can a man stay true when he has this kind of thing thrown at him constantly?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Don't blow your fuses yet. Just keep him happy at home and be grateful that he can joke about the women who try to tempt him. A good electrician not only knows how to short a live wire, but he knows watt's watt!

DEAR ABBY: We are a married couple who have usually seen things eye to eye. But something has come up about which we disagree violently. Our 4-year-old son will not go to sleep without his doll. It's one of those cuddly, stuffed dolls that looks like a sleeping baby. He has slept with this doll since he was two, and now we can't get away from him. My husband says the boy is too old for such nonsense and we just ought to take the doll away from him. I think we should let him sleep with it as long as he wants to. Can you help us?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Let the boy sleep with his cuddly companion as long as he feels the need for it. If you don't make an issue of it, he will probably outgrow the doll before too long.

CONFIDENTIAL TOO "HURT AND SPEECHLESS": Tell her that giving birth to a child does not make a woman a "mother" in the truest sense of the word. But taking a motherless child into one's home (and heart) and electing to raise that child with patience, love and understanding spells out the real meaning of motherhood.

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Potato Salad with Crisp Lettuce and Radishes

Buttered Rye Bread Mustard
Cherry Mold Beverage

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin

1/2 cup cold water

3 cups sweet dark cherries (pitted)

1/2 cup sugar

1 1/2 cups water

1-3 cup lemon juice

Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Cook pitted cherries, sugar and 1/2 cups water together gently until cherries are soft but retain their shape — about 10 minutes. Drain juice; measure; add water if necessary to make 1 1/4 cups. Add softened gelatin and lemon juice to hot cherry juice, stir until dissolved. Chill until partly set; fold in cherries. Turn into 1-quart mold. Chill until firm. Turn out; garnish with water cress and whole fresh cherries. Makes 6 servings.

Refreshing lemonade: mix lemon juice and sugar in the quantities needed and add grated lemon rind. Add a little of the mix to ice-filled glasses and then fill with chilled sparkling water.

If you form parsley sprigs into a tight bunch, you can do a neat job of mincing them with a kitchen scissors.

DEAR KISSED: The only reason people kiss OUTSIDE is because for one reason or another they can't kiss INSIDE. Invite your fiancé into your home and kiss him in privacy.

DEAR ABBY: We are a married couple who have usually seen things eye to eye. But something has come up about which we disagree violently. Our 4-year-old son will not go to sleep without his doll. It's one of those cuddly, stuffed dolls that looks like a sleeping baby. He has slept with this doll since he was two, and now we can't get away from him. My husband says the boy is too old for such nonsense and we just ought to take the doll away from him. I think we should let him sleep with it as long as he wants to. Can you help us?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Let the boy sleep with his cuddly companion as long as he feels the need for it. If you don't make an issue of it, he will probably outgrow the doll before too long.

CONFIDENTIAL TOO "HURT AND SPEECHLESS": Tell her that giving birth to a child does not make a woman a "mother" in the truest sense of the word. But taking a motherless child into one's home (and heart) and electing to raise that child with patience, love and understanding spells out the real meaning of motherhood.

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 cups sweet dark cherries (pitted)
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups water
1-3 cup lemon juice

Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Cook pitted cherries, sugar and 1 1/2 cups water together gently until cherries are soft but retain their shape — about 10 minutes. Drain juice; measure; add water if necessary to make 1 1/4 cups. Add softened gelatin and lemon juice to hot cherry juice, stir until dissolved. Chill until partly set; fold in cherries. Turn into 1-quart mold. Chill until firm. Turn out; garnish with water cress and whole fresh cherries. Makes 6 servings.

Refreshing lemonade: mix lemon juice and sugar in the quantities needed and add grated lemon rind. Add a little of the mix to ice-filled glasses and then fill with chilled sparkling water.

If you form parsley sprigs into a tight bunch, you can do a neat job of mincing them with a kitchen scissors.

6 Home Runs Help Detroit Chalk Up Pair of Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Detroit flexed its muscles Sunday with six home runs to back up complete games by Don Mossi and Phil Regan and regained the American League lead from New York by a half-game and one percentage point.

Rocky Colavito hit two and Norm Cash, Al Kaline, Dick McAuliffe and Mossi one each in an 11-1 and 8-3 sweep over the Kansas City A's.

Mickey Mantle's 32nd home run and ninth-inning double led the New York Yankees to a 2-1 victory over Baltimore. Bud Daley's four-hitter kept the Yanks rolling.

Chuck Essegian's two homers helped Cleveland dump Minnesota in the first game 7-5 but Lenny Green, who had eight hits in 11 trips during the afternoon, slammed a triple, double and three singles in the Twins' 12-5 triumph in the second game.

After Los Angeles rapped out 13 hits, including three-run homers by Steve Biko and Ken Hunt in an 11-2 first game romp over Washington, the Angels lost the second 4-3 in the 10th on a pair of walks by Ryne Duren and a bad throw by catcher Del Rice.

Boston salvaged a split with Chicago when the Red Sox broke through with two runs in the 12th inning for a 5-3 victory in the second game after the White Sox took the first 4-3 in Minnie Minoso's two-run single in the ninth.

Cincinnati's National League lead was cut to five games when the Chicago Cubs beat the Reds 4-2 on George Altman's homer and second-place Los Angeles rallied to top Pittsburgh 12-11 on Johnny Roseboro's 10th-inning triple. Sam Jones, making his first start since June 13, pitched San Francisco to a 7-3 decision over Philadelphia and Milwaukee bombed St. Louis 9-1 with two homers by Joe Adcock and one by Lee Maye.

Mossi's homer in the first game at Detroit was his first of the year as he helped himself to victory No. 10 with a five-hitter. All Detroit runs in the second came on homers. Colavito's 23rd and 24th drove in five. Cash hit his 25th with a man on, his first in 17 games.

Daley might have had a shut-out in Baltimore in a rain-interrupted game but for some shoddy play that let two fly balls fall in for hits in the sixth inning when the Orioles scored their run. Mantle's homer came off Steve Barber, who also was the victim of Mantle's game-winning double in the ninth, following a double by Tony Kubek.

Davis Cup Team Starts Its Tests

ST. LOUIS (AP)—With chunky Chuck McKinley of St. Louis as his wheelhorse, Capt. David Freed expects his 1961 Davis Cup tennis team to be stronger than the 1960 squad.

Freed's team of McKinley, Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., Bernard (Tut) Barten of Dallas and Allen Fox of Los Angeles, whipped Ecuador, 5-0, in the American Zone semifinals here this weekend, and now waits for Canada, Mexico and Morocco to battle for the right to meet the Yanks next month.

The schedule calls for Canada to meet Mexico first, with the winner to play Morocco. The Mexicans are heavy favorites.

Reds Happy To Welcome Braves '9'

CINCINNATI (AP)—Unless you look at the records, it might seem absurd that the Cincinnati Reds would welcome the tough Milwaukee Braves and Warren Spahn as opponents tonight, over seventh place Chicago.

The National League front-runners were glad, however, for the Cubs to leave town Sunday night. The Chicagoans have been pure trouble to the Reds all year.

More trouble prevailed Sunday when the Cubs, helped by Cincinnati miscues, took a 4-2 victory and squared a four-game series.

The Cubs were still masters of the league-leaders, 10 games to 6 in the season.

Ken Hunt took the loss after giving way to a pinch hitter in the sixth when the Reds had a rally started.

The Braves, in fifth place, have been beaten 11 times by Cincinnati this season while winning only four times. And Spahn has suffered four of the defeats.

For those reasons, Milwaukee is most welcome for the two-game series.

Yesterday Chicago had tied the score, 2-2, with a pair of unearned runs, and George Altman's 16th homer gave them the edge. Although Bob Anderson's no-hit relief pitching nailed down the decision, southpaw Dick Ellsworth took the victory with 5 1-3 innings or work.

Cleveland Tops Ohio Am Golfers

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Walter Stahl Jr. is the No. 5 player on the Cleveland Racket Club's squash team, but he's No. 1 among Ohio's amateur golfers.

The modest M.I.T. graduate, head of his own manufacturers' representative firm at 26, climbed on the throne Sunday by defeating public linkster Mike Podolski, 22, of Columbus 2 and 1 in the 36-hole finale of the 55th state amateur tournament.

It was Podolski's fourth frustration in two years. The last two seasons he has been runnerup in the state public links championship. Two weeks ago he finished second in the National Intercollegiate, and this time he fell short in his most determined bid for the coveted amateur crown.

The first five holes held the key to Stahl's conquest. He won four of them—two with birdies—and Podolski never caught up.

After the early spurge, Stahl won only four of the remaining 30 holes, just enough to give him the Governor's Cup.

No one was more surprised than Stahl that he wound up as best of the 219 original entrants. He had qualified with a 156, under the wire by two strokes, and had checked out of his motel Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings with the expectation of heading home.

"Gee, yes, I'm surprised I won," he said after the match. "If there was ever a longshot, darkhorse champion, I'm it."

But champion he is and he had the shots and stamina to prove it over the six-day, pressure-packed 180-hole marathon over Toledo Inverness' treacherous terrain.

Four different times in the finals Podolski cut Stahl's margin to a single hole. But just when Stahl's hopes appeared dim, the Clevelander uncorked a shot to move further ahead.

Podolski's downfall was his putter, usually his most potent weapon. He didn't make a putt of more than eight feet in the entire round, at least 10 long ones hanging in the lip of the cup.

With the two youngsters going all the way, new fuel was added to a campaign by some of the tournament's old times to change the amateur from a week-long match play event to a three-day, 72-hole medal play event.

Some of the oldsters say they can't stand the long grind but their move to shorten the tournament was voted down. Several of them, including former champion Tom Jones Jr. of Akron, said they would continue to fight for the shorter medal play race.

New directors named by the Ohio Golf Association are Gale Evans of Cincinnati, Dr. Mark Moots of Canton, M. G. O'Neill of Akron, and Dudley Humphrey of Cleveland.

Next year's tournament will be held the third week in July at the Miami Valley Club, Dayton.

Purina Is Victim Of 2-Hit Hurling

John Funk and Bobby Dean teamed to throw five no-hit, no-run innings after a brief Purina challenge in the first as the Elks dropped Ralston, 9-2, in Saturday's only Little League makeup contest.

The visitors tossed a scare into the powerful BPOE outfit in the top of the opening frame. Hill reached first on an error and Doug Pontious walked.

Craig Lambert connected for a single that brought Hill across and Lindsey followed with another one-bagger to plate Pontious.

Funk nipped the barrage by striking out Phil Diehl and he and reliever Dean checkmated the Checkerboard crew the rest of the route.

TED HERRON started things off for the Elks with a sizzling single. Watson moved to first on a fielding boot and Dean clogged the sacks by drawing a walk.

Joe Leatherwood shoved Herron and Watson home with a single before Bill Hill bore down to get Wells and Funk and retire the side. The Purina moundsman got through the second without damage, fanning two of the three men he faced.

Ken Palmer rocked Hill for a double leading off the third. Dean backed this with a single and Leatherwood walked to load the bases. John Wills unloaded a long two-bagger to produce a pair of counters.

Funk fanned and Stevenson went out on an infield grounder, but Nick Wicksham kept the assault rolling with a run-scoring single. Herron cracked a line one-bagger for the Elks' final score of the frame.

The fourth went in the same fashion as Palmer, Wills and Funk singled to give the winners three additional tallies. Hill, who went the distance in defeat, put the BPOE boys down without a run in the fifth.

AIR CONDITIONED
FOR YEAR ROUND COMFORT

and here's why more and more people are installing GAS AIR CONDITIONING

Nearly everyone heats with GAS, and when they learn the facts about GAS air conditioning, they want it. They're pleasantly surprised to find how little it costs.

GAS provides year-round, total comfort using a central heating and cooling system controlled through one thermostat. In the summer you sleep better, cook and bake in a cool kitchen, enjoy your home more than ever. Then in winter, with the turn of a dial, your home is kept warm and snug with fresh air, GAS heat. You get all of this from the same GAS heating-cooling system. Why settle for less?

The installation cost of a central GAS heating-cooling system in a new home can be financed with the mortgage for a very modest increase in payments.

If you are planning to remodel, figure on adding a GAS air conditioning unit to your present forced air heating system. You can probably use the existing heating ductwork. You can finance the whole job through the gas company; pay for it with your gas bill.

If you plan to build or buy a new home or to remodel your present home, find out about GAS air conditioning. You'll want it! Call the Gas Company for full information.

Funk nipped the barrage by striking out Phil Diehl and reliever Dean checkmated the Checkerboard crew the rest of the route.

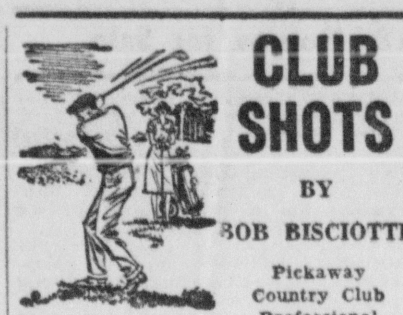

TED HERRON started things off for the Elks with a sizzling single. Watson moved to first on a fielding boot and Dean clogged the sacks by drawing a walk.

Joe Leatherwood shoved Herron and Watson home with a single before Bill Hill bore down to get Wells and Funk and retire the side. The Purina moundsman got through the second without damage, fanning two of the three men he faced.

Ken Palmer rocked Hill for a double leading off the third. Dean backed this with a single and Leatherwood walked to load the bases. John Willis unloaded a long two-bagger to produce a pair of counts.

Funk fanned and Stevenson went out on an infield grounder, but Nick Wickersham kept the assault rolling with a run-scoring single. Herron cracked a fine one-bagger for the Elks' final score of the frame.

The fourth went in the same fashion as Palmer, Willis' and Funk singled to give the winners three additional tallies. Hill, who went the distance in defeat, put the BPOE boys down without a run in the fifth.

The Best Ball Blind Partner tournament Sunday ended in a three-way deadlock for first place on net 62's. The team of George Fuhrman - Bruce McKenney, Tom McGuire - Karl Herrmann, and Tom Eveland - Rudy Chelikowsky had 10 under pars.

Three teams tied at 63's were Dick Clifton - Dick Hoffman, John Teal - Jim Price and Bob Moon - Wink Wellington.

All alone at 64 were Bill Eddy and Bill Lyle. This two - some started out with seven straight birdies to finish the front nine in 30, but came back in 34.

Vern Hawkes - Bill Weldon and Bob Call - Bob McFadden had 65's.

Tom Eveland won low gross with 73, while Bob Moon and George Fuhrman had 76's. Dean McFadden roared in with 77 and Tom McGuire 78.

In second round matches of the Directors' tourney, Bob McFadden defeated Tom McGuire 2 and 1. Rudy Chelikowsky won over Tim Dickenson 2 and 1. Ken Caughman nipped Brent Bell 1 up and Wayne Chelikowsky won over Ab Leach by forfeit.

In first round matches of the family tournament, Lemuel and Hester Weldon won over Dick and Babs Heckert 1 up; Rick and Sue Spires defeated Dr. Bob and Duffy Hedges 1 up and Charles and Dottie Smith defeated Emmett and Miriam Barnhart 2 and 1.

Winning prizes in the Ladies Invitational last week at Brookside Country Club were: Sue Spires, 1st flight - second low net; Dottie Smith, 3rd flight - first low gross; Marti Bisciotti, 3rd flight - second low net; Miriam Young, 2nd flight - second low gross; Nora McKenney, 3rd flight - first low net.

The case of softdrinks was won for a second time by Ruby Chelikowsky with a short 20 inches from the hole.

The Red and Blue tournament scheduled July 23 has been postponed until a later date.

SIGN OF THE TIMES...

and here's why more and more people are installing

GAS AIR CONDITIONING

Nearly everyone heats with GAS, and when they learn the facts about GAS air conditioning, they want it. They're pleasantly surprised to find how little it costs.

GAS provides year-round, total comfort using a central heating and cooling system controlled through one thermostat. In the summer you sleep better, cook and bake in a cool kitchen, enjoy your home more than ever. Then in winter, with the turn of a dial, your home is kept warm and snug with fresh air, GAS heat. You get all of this from the same GAS heating-cooling system. Why settle for less?

The installation cost of a central GAS heating-cooling system in a new home can be financed with the mortgage for a very modest increase in payments.

If you are planning to remodel, figure on adding a GAS air conditioning unit to your present forced air heating system. You can probably use the existing heating ductwork. You can finance the whole job through the gas company; pay for it with your gas bill.

If you plan to build or buy a new home or to remodel your present home, find out about GAS air conditioning. You'll want it! Call the Gas Company for full information.

There's nothing like a flame for cooling and heating

Indiana Skindivers Search For Pair Trapped in Cavern

ORLEANS, Ind. (AP) — State police skindivers began searching a narrow limestone cavern near here today for two young explorers trapped overnight when a flash flood rushed in.

The first hour's efforts uncovered no sign of the pair, identified as Ralph S. Moreland Jr., 25, Knox, Ind., and Tom Arnold, 22, Peru, Ind. They had not been heard from since 5 p.m. Sunday when they entered the underground passage.

A foot of water still covered the cave's mouth this morning. The entrance had been choked with as much as 16 feet of water at one point during the night.

A state police sergeant said, "Officially they're not dead yet. We're still hoping."

A dozen fellow explorers congregated at a farmhouse near the nameless cave, 30 miles north of the Ohio River in south central Indiana.

One of the volunteers, Bob Nichol, 21, Bloomington, Ind., said the waters in the tiny cave mouth, located in a small depression where two gullies cross, would probably not recede until later today.

Moreland and Arnold had been in the cave about 90 minutes Sunday when the rains started. The underground passage filled rapidly.

State police said the cave sloped downwards about five miles. Water seeping through sinkholes on the surface caused it to fill frequently during rains. Police said the currents rip through the underground stream at a dangerous speed.

Showers dumped up to two inches of rain on the area. The youths are graduate students at Indiana University and belong to an exploring club at Bloomington, Ind. Friends said the youths had spelunked for six years and were "as experienced as anybody," although this was their first venture into this particular cave. They had a small quantity of candy for food.

Two companions, Bill Birkey, 24, a university student from Fort Collins, Colo., and Allan Lipscomb, 16, a Bloomington, Ind., high school student, were above ground when the rains started. They escaped.

"We Republicans will stand behind the president if he takes a firm position," Bridges said.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., said Sunday he was certain Kennedy had a program to meet the rising danger of the Berlin crisis.

Rayburn predicted in an ABC-TV interview—"Issues and Answers"—"When President Kennedy decides to move, he has to have—Congress will move along with him."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, in a separate interview with a newsman, praised the nonpolitical stance he said Republicans generally are taking in the foreign policy field.

"The Republicans on the whole are rising above partisanship in this crisis," Mansfield said. "They are showing realism about the grave situation we face in Berlin."

Mansfield said he thinks that when Democratic congressional leaders meet with Kennedy Tuesday, the President may have reached a final decision on whether to build up conventional military strength by a partial mobilization of reserves and National Guard forces or by an increase in the size of the Army and Marines.

While the Republicans signified their willingness to go along with Kennedy on Berlin, Bridges said there is no compromise yet in sight on the President's request for authority to make up to $8.8 billion in foreign aid loans over a five-year period.

Kennedy discusses the matter with eight members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today as part of a series of sessions in which he is attempting to sell Congress on the long-range program.

Per Capita Debt in County $153.70; Total $5,511,087

Each man, woman and child in Pickaway County is in debt $153.70, according to a debt statement report for 1960 by the county auditor to State Auditor James A. Rhoades.

The per capita debt is based on Pickaway County's 1960 population of 35,855 and the overall, county-wide debt of $5,511,087.

Per capita debt is derived by dividing a county's population into the total of school, municipal, county and township debts reported by county auditors.

In general, Pickaway County is better off than other counties in the state. State average for 1960 was $219.89 per capita as compared with $233.11 in 1959.

ACCORDING to Auditor Rhoades, this is just the beginning. The national debt is approximately 287 billion dollars. This figures out to about $1,600 for each of the 180 million persons in the United States. Debt of the state of Ohio on June 30, 1961, was $520,544,000, or $53.63 for each of the 9,706,397 persons in the state.

A rubber spatula is invaluable if you like to bake cakes and cookies. Nothing is superior to this little tool when it comes to removing every bit of batter or beaten egg yolk from a bowl, or melted chocolate from a saucepan or other utensil.
